screen! How to change the logon screen? How to change the boot screen? How to change the logon screen? How to change the logon screen? A few weeks ago I was watching the newest video by YouTuber it-is-raining-cats and he showcased one Windows XP machine with an unattractive logon screen. It made me thinking that this kind of look is not something new to us, especially if we are familiar with the Windows 7 logon screen. Well, after some research and with the help of some other users, I've found out the fastest and the easiest way to use the application is to use a folder that contains several images of logon screens and boot images. Here is how it should be done. First, create a folder called "Logons" or something similar to this on your computer. Now, copy all the images of your logon screens and all the images of the boot screens you have previously gathered and place them in the folder. The program will randomly select one of the images you place inside the folder for every login screen and every boot screen. Now, close the folder and go to its properties. Under the Options tab, you should see a field called "Choose folder:" Here you must enter the folder you have created on your computer and the application will use it. So, all you need to do is to click the Apply button and restart the computer. If you want to make sure that the folder contains images that are meant to be seen on the machine, I would recommend to download all the images from here. Now, once b7e8fdf5c8
